your food project

Warm-up

This dataset stores city and state in different columns, what if you want to print out city and state in the format "City, State"?

CityState_frmt = str_c(farmers_market$city, ', ',farmers_market$State)
#Combine City,State

Question 1:

Cleanup the Facebook and Twitter column to let them contain only the facebook username or twitter handle name. - replace "https://www.facebook.com/pages/Cameron-Park-Farmers-Market/97634216535?ref=hl" with "Cameron-Park-Farmers-Market", - "@21acres" with "21acres

Question 2:

Clean up the `city` and `street` column. Remove state and county names from the `city` column and consolidate address spellings to be more consistent (e.g. "St.", "ST.", "Street" all become "St"; "and" changes to "&", etc…).

```r
#Cleaning Street
farmers_market <- farmers_market %>%
  mutate( street = street %>% str_replace_all(c( "\\b(and)\\b" = "&", #Replace 'and' by '&'
                              "\\bAve?(\\.|\\b)" = "Avenue", #Replacing
'Ave' by 'Avenue'
                              "\\bBlvd(\\.|\\b)" = "Boulevard" #Replacing
'Blvd' by        'Boulevard'
                             ))
         )

Question 3:

Create a new data frame (tibble) that explains the online presence of each state's farmers market. I.e., how many percentages of them have a facebook account? A twitter account? Or either of the accounts? (Hint: use the is.na() function)

farmers_percentage<- farmers_market %>% group_by(State) %>% #Group by State #Summarize columns to find percentage of accounts by State summarise(FaceBook = ((sum(!is.na(Facebook)))/n())*100, Twitter = ((sum(!is.na(Twitter)))/n())*100,
                      Youtube= ((sum(!is.na(Youtube)))/n())*100,
                      Website = ((sum(!is.na(Website)))/n())*100,

Question 4:

Some of the farmer market names are quite long. Can you make them shorter by using the `forcats::fct_recode` function? Create a plot that demonstrates the number of farmers markets per location type. The locations should be ordered in descending order where the top of the graph will have the one with the highest number of markets.

farmers_market<-farmers_market %>%
                    as_tibble()%>% mutate(Abbr_Location =  #Using mutate to create the new column and                                            keeping the old location as it is recode(Location,
  "Faith-based institution (e.g., church, mosque, synagogue, temple)"=
"Religional Inst.",
  "Closed-off public street" = "Public St.",

Question 5:

Write code to sanity check the `kyfprojects` data. For example, does `Program Abbreviation` always match `Program Name` for all the rows? (Try thinking of your own rules, too.)
